Veterans Day Time To Face Facts Service Slated One thing should be crystal-

Monday Night A brief ritual giving thanks for the peace won by the fighting men of all wars and a tribute to those who made the supreme sacrifice for it, will mark the Veterans Day observance in Washington C. H. Monday

The service will be held near the World War 1 monument on the south lawn of the courthouse shortly after 8 p. m. by a team from the Paul H. Hughey post of the American Legion, headed by Commander Norman Boop.

Veterans Day came into being after World War 1 as Armistice Day; after World War 11, it became Veterans Day. It is a national holiday.

WHILE the American Legion has taken the lead in arranging for the Veterans Day service here this year, as it has for many years past, invitations have been extended to all veterans organizations to participate, along with Company M of the Ohio National Guard and the Washington C. H. Figh School band.

Legionnaires, deleg ations from the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans, Company M and the WHS band are to meet at the Legion Hall on N. Fayette St. at 7:30 p. m. Monday. At 8 p. m., the line of march will move out for the courthouse where the service will be held.

Following the service, which Commander Boop said would not last more than 10 minutes, the veterans are to return to the Le-

Even though the case should go against Miami Trace, the situation will not be changed basically, because the men elected Tuesday are dedicated to carry out the wishes of the majority even though it should mean starting all over again on the school program.

Given the endorsement they received at the polls, we would do the same.

PEOPLE want new schoolsproblems, separately as a city and as a county, build the needed facilities and start being good neighbors again.

The animosities and the heartaches which are the inescapable, yet nonetheless regrett ble, results of disagreements over school policies are not going to vanish overnight. But they can, and they will, fade with the passing of time.

The storms hit hardest at Alexthey have made that clear. It's andria, La., where three persons time, then, to face our own were killed Thursday night in the 10-block residential section. A couple died at Carencro, La., and two men were killed in a cotton gin in the community of Higginbotham near Crowley, La.

Rescue teams poked through wreckage today in a search for more victims.

The Texas deaths included two at Groves and one at Orange while the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Parker were found some distance from their house after the twister ripped through Greenwood, Miss. The Parkers' bodies were found clasped together and it appeared Parker was trying to shield his wife when the storm tossed them through the air.

The storms hit communities throughout South Central Louisiana with heavy rains and high winds accompanying them. Power facilities and communi cations were disrupted in several communities. Alexandria and Crowley were both without lights

SEVERAL communities reported scores of people injured. The village of Boyce, La., reported at least 15 injured while 81 were hurt in Orange where a housing development was smashed.

A statement issued by H. A. Toulmin Jr., chairman of the board at Commonwealth, said:

"Commonwealth was advised by Wright Field that the new fuel was a close approach to atomic energy, but Wright Field said it could not disturb its program and declined to test it.

Toulmin said the fuel is available in either solid or liquid form and uses materials, some among the cheapest known, readily avallable in the United States.

Power of a fuel is measured by the number of British Thermal Units of heat generated when it burns. Rockets convert this heat energy into motion energy.

For comparison purposes, the gasoline which powers your car yields about 18,500 BTUs per pound. The liquid burned by jet aircraft yields about 18,000 BTUs.

A pound of boron-hydrogen compound is more than 50 per cent more powerful. Decaborane, a solid, yields 28,500 BTUs per pound; pentaborane a liquid, steps up to 29,000 BTUs and diborane, a gas, goes to 32,000.

Hydrogen alone yields 52,000 BTUs. But it is a tricky gas which can be solidified only at hundreds of degrees below zero and Dr. Huff says chemists have been unable to find any practical fuel above the 32,000 BTU level.

Drifts were so huge that all highway traffic was halted, schools dismissed, people were stranded in their homes and business simply "went to the dogs" until a multitude of people literally dug them-

It will be recalled that the snow started Thanksgiving Day, and continued until Nov. 28, when work of clearing the roads was well under way and after the mercury had dipped to around zero.

Hundreds of persons, many of them returning from a football game in Columbus, were stranded in farm houses along main highways in the county, when the roads were drifted full of snow and the raging blizzard and intense cold made it imperative that they seek shelter at roadside houses or perish.

Communist government is exploiting its space launchings of satellites to the greatest possible extent before the world in order to direct attention away from the growing amount of internal troubles at home.

Soviet leadership is failing to produce for home consumption what the people of Russia need and want. Russia is not succeeding well in industry for producing more food, for building sufficient farm machinery, motor cars, or dozens of other things that are in common use in quantity in most of the free world coun-

Seemingly the Soviet idea appears to be to build up military strength, war materials and occasionally such things as Sputnik. The Russian people must struggle for their better living conditions in the best way they can.

The Communists in control of government are finding it hard to use their dictatorship methods to build a progressive workable government.

The standard recipe for hiding unrest among the populace in ancient Rome was "bread and circuses." For a ruling caste that had forgotten how to govern,

It appears probable that the Soviet the next best course was to supply popular diversions to help the populace forget what those in high places had been trying not to see.

The ruse was expensive, but successful enough for a time. It was, however, only a ruse, and Romans began to lose their taste for bread and circuses when it became apparent that Rome was crumbling about their ears.

The Soviet Union has a far more difficult task of distracting the whole world. It has staged a brilliant circus, now in fact a two - ring circus with a performing dog, and it may have more sensational stunts ahead. The difficulty, however, with this particular show, for *all its breathtaking feats, is the fact that the ringmaster seems to be experiencing all kinds of trouble on the ground, whatever marvels he may point to overhead.

There are those who remark on Nikita Khrushchev's wonderful luck in having a circus like this available while there is trouble in the internal workings, and there are many people who can't help thinking what bad luck it must be to put on the only really big Red circus in history just when the show is going through ominous convulsions in the management end.
